L.I.: Chinese characters – radicals 部首

S.C.: I can identify the radical in Chinese characters.

The list of Chinese radicals is a rough equivalent of a Chinese alphabet. There are 214 radicals in the original Kangxi radical list, but a few of them are no longer used in simplified Chinese. They are used to index the characters for Chinese dictionaries. They are also the building blocks of Chinese characters and often reflect some common semantics or phonetic characteristics. Knowing common radicals can help you learn new Chinese characters.

Remember we looked at the radicals of the vocabulary you have learned? Below is an example.

Some common radicals are 人 as in 今, 木 as in 校, 口 as in 唱, 日 as in 时, 土 as in 场, 讠 as in 汗 and 扌 as in 拍.

What are the radicals of these characters?

nǐ 你		pái 排		zǎo 早		hàn 汗
lǐ 李		zuò 坐		jù 句

Next give an example for each radical and write the English meaning for it. Go to your Chinese book to look for them. You can also go online at <https://www.chinese-tools.com/tools/sinograms.html?r> for additional help.
