Let's learn how to say and write another type of weather: thunderstorm in Chinese.

Thunder is ^{léi} 雷. You can separate the character into the top and the bottom parts. The top is 雨 which you should know. The bottom is ^{tián} 田 which looks like a window and it means the fields. Picture that as the piece of farmland divided into paddocks. Combing the two is a picture of heavy rain falling on the fields which is usually what happens when there is a thunderstorm. So in Chinese we say 雷雨 when it is stormy weather as it is thundering with heavy rain.

Let's practise writing the Chinese character for thunder. Remember top to bottom, left to right.
